Introduction

The CAP's 'Green Architecture' is the suite of rules and tools for improving the environmental and climate performance of farming, food production, land management and rural areas. It sets conditions for the receipt of certain payments (conditionality) and includes various interventions such as eco-schemes, agri-environment-climate schemes, compensation for area specific disadvantages, as well as green and non-productive investments, knowledge exchange and cooperation.

The second meeting of the TG will discuss in detail the topics that TG members have identified as priorities during the in-between the meetings' activities; will explore the merits of the Green Architecture to address Member States' climate and environmental needs and propose recommendations on how to improve design and uptake of different interventions to deliver the desired outcomes.

Aims of the second TG meeting:

- Share challenges and ideas in relation to Green Architecture, with particular focus on possible simplifications while enhancing environmental ambition, innovative approaches and cooperation.
- Explore opportunities to build robust and effective green strategies that are coherent and fit for purpose.
- Develop recommendations for developments and implementation of green strategies in the context of the CAP.
