PROJECT IDEA:

-Security and crisis management is about small everyday actions and self-preparedness.

-The ability of rural citizens and communities to prevent accidents and respond to incidents is crucial for the security and crisis resilience of society as a whole.

Everyday security as it is about preparing for major disruptions and emergencies in society at large (floods, storms, general security, electricity and infrastructure damages, "war time security", cyberattacks, forest fires, food production, energy supplies – the list is quite long!!!

What to do?

Benchmarking, best practices, learning by doing, mapping/searching local solutions in different countries rural areas.

Education of rural citizens fostering practical skills on “survival”, sensibilization

Organisation of courses for rural population on different thematics - to be discussed among partnership

In addition to practical skills, confidence and a sense of security in local communities are important for the resilience of citizens and communities.
